

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Lexington, Va., March 2.—Mrs. J. H. Robinson, 71, assistant instructor at the Fort Belvoir Military Academy, spent several days in barracks this week.

Vaughan Camp, 11, who is studying law at the university, was in Lexington on Friday.

On Friday, Captain Corbin, the professor of English, entertained the Fortnightly Club at his quarters. Covers were laid for twenty, after supper Professor Corbin, Washington and Lee, read an interesting paper on the "Life and Works of Henry George," which there was a lively discussion as to the importance of Henry George's contributions to political economy. The guests of the evening were: General Nichols, Colonel Graves, Captain Brumage and Captain Edwards.

Among the other interesting features of the final program, as usual, will be the class reunions. The first definite notice as to class gatherings has been received from the class of 1895. He expects to have a large number of his classmates here in June.

The usual policy was granted cadets on Washington's birthday. The cadets made use of the day in various ways. Some drove to Natural Bridge for dinner. The ex-members of the class of 1912 gave a banquet at the Lexington Hotel. By far the most enjoyable feature of the day was the reception given the cadets by the young women of the Southern Seminary at Bacon Park. The reception was later in the afternoon turned into a Leap Year dance.

Cadet Richardson is organizing a Press Club among the cadets.
